DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The Johnson Woolen Mill dates from the mid 1800's. It was a stone building several stories in height which was located at the bottom of Gilpin's Falls. None of the mill buildings remain standing. Scattered among the trees and underbrush are several stone foundations. Parts of the mill race can still be detected as well as some handsomely built stone arches that supported an old road which crossed the race.

Some distance above the mill is a dam that is only partially standing. It is built of stone and stretches from the west bank of the Big North East Creek to an island in the middle of the stream. At one time a road passed through the mill site from Bayview. It was called Factory Lane.

In addition to the mill building there was also a house that stood on the hillside above the mill. Only traces of the foundation and a hand dug well remain.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

The Johnson Woolen Mill was operated by the Johnson family through the better part of the 19th century. The Lake Atlas of 1877 lists H. C. Johnson as the owner. This mill is supposed to have made cloth used for uniforms during the Civil War. Although there is very little physical evidence left of the mill the area is very scenic.
